

3M MPro120 FACT SHEET

Description:

Employing 3M's new MM200 miniature projection engine, the MPro120 is the newest member of the 3M MPro family of handheld pocket projectors. When attached to a device with video output - such as a laptop computer, DVD or MP3 player, or handheld video game console - the MPro120 projects one of the highest quality images of any similar projector currently available while boasting a battery life between two to four hours (based on brightness setting).

Product Benefits:

- VGA image and 100% color gamut gives the user one of the highest quality images of any portable projector currently available.
- Two integrated, half-watt stereo speakers help transform the MPro120 into a self-contained presentation device for entertainment or business applications.
- Projects eight to 50-inch still or moving image stored on a video capable pass-through device (e.g. MP3 player, laptop computer, etc.).
- Uses Liquid Crystal on Silicon (LCOS) technology for superb image quality and minimization of component size.
- LED light source with 20,000 hour life means the unit is environmentally friendly and there is no need for a replacement bulb.
- Featuring an integrated flip stand, tripod and variety of input cables, the MPro120 is ready to use "out-of-the-box."
